Child-Led Learning

Whether you choose public school, private school or home-schooling, there are ways that parents can make learning fun for their children by presenting subject matter naturally based on the child's interests.

Experience-based learning often holds a child's attention by keeping him actively involved in the pursuit of knowledge. It is natural for children to want to read, write, play with numbers, and learn about society, and children learn best when they are following their interests and curiosity with the help and resources from supportive parents. For instance, cooking is a way of learning science and

Child Spotlight

Connor C. is our Student of the Month for March. We were just so proud of how well Connor transitioned into his new classroom in February and is adjusting so well. He is happy all the time and he is saying new words. He is so much more independent in his new classroom and loves playing with all his friends.

math naturally from recipes.

Board games and card games reinforce literacy and math skills, along with verbal communication and cooperation skills. You might be surprised that your child is able to "out-think" you in games like Memory, Monopoly, Chess, Scrabble and Battleship.

"Doing real things" brings about healthy mental development and valuable knowledge. With a little guidance from parents, the world becomes an exciting place for exploring new ideas.

Parents' Night Out

We will be having Parents' Night Out on Friday, March 24, from 6:00 to 10:00 p.m., with pizza, fruit, and lots of exciting games.

Please see the front office for the sign-up sheet.

Teacher Spotlight

Ms. Baylee has been with Endless Discoveries since August 2021. She has worked with Infants and most recently our Younger Toddlers. She has been such a valuable employee for us and has served as a mentor to our teachers for the last year. She is loved by our parents, children and other staff members.

Baylee will be leaving us this month to move back to her hometown where her husband has accepted a new job. We love her and will miss her dearly! We wish you nothing but greatness, Ms. Baylee, and pray that you will keep in touch.
